Once children finish the initial survival series, they transition to a 25-minute small group setting to further enhance their swimming skills, which allows them to practice what they've learned. A small group setting encourages those who are still a touch reluctant to enjoy the water as much as the others in their class. There is an average of 3 - 4 students to a class, with no more than 5 per class.

Sea Monkeys: Parent-participation class, ages 7 months – 2-1/2 years, fun and practice

Stingrays: 4-5 children plus Instructor, ages 2-1/2 – 4 years, fun and practice
